

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 An electrode employing a nitride-based semiconductor of III-V group compound having a favorable ohmic characteristic and a producing method thereof are provided. The electrode includes a nitride-based semiconductor layer of III-V group compound, an electrode metal, and a metal oxide inserted therebetween. The metal oxide is preferably an oxide of metal element(s) permitting formation of a nitride semiconductor.